Wire-Fraud Invoice Scams

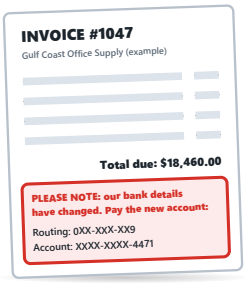

Catch a changed bank account before you pay it.

We Make I.T. Happen!™

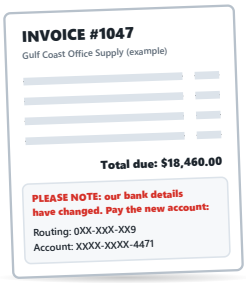

1 Watch for a "Bank Details Changed" Note

On an invoice or in an email, usually right before a payment is due.

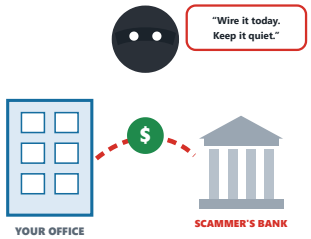

2 Don't Reply to the Email to Confirm

A scammer who controls the inbox can answer right back and confirm the fake change.

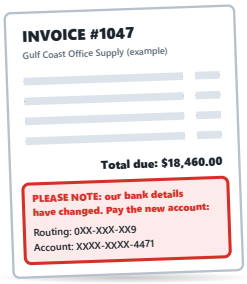

3 Call a Known Number Instead

One you already have on file, never a number written in the email itself.

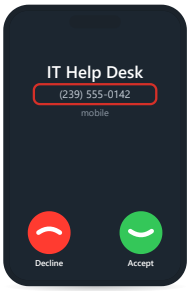

4 Check the Real Sending Address

Not just the name shown; look for a misspelled domain or an extra letter.

5 Slow Down on Urgency

"Wire it today" or "keep it quiet" are red flags, not reasons to hurry.

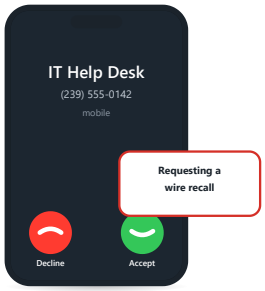

6 Train Everyone Who Touches Money

Not just accounting; agents, assistants, and anyone who approves a payment.

7 If You Already Sent It, Call Your Bank

Ask for a wire recall right away, with any documents they need.

8 Then Report It at ic3.gov

The FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center can help your bank and law enforcement.

Good to Know

- This targets anyone who wires money, not just big companies; real estate and title offices see it constantly.
- A phone call to a known number stops almost every version of this scam cold.
- Not sure if something's legitimate? Call 239-513-1960 and we'll help you check.
